Division of Nature Preserves

Indiana's system of Nature Preserves protects unique or outstanding natural areas throughout the state. They are living museums which contain examples of relatively undisturbed natural communities similar to those seen by the first explorers to this region. Many also serve as habitat for species of plants and animals which are rare in Indiana. In addition to the nature preserves listed on the map, a number of areas within other DNR properties are designated as nature preserves. There are also nature preserves owned by local governments, universities and private conservation organizations. A directory of Indiana's dedicated nature preserves is available from the DNR Customer Service Center (check the DNR website or call 1-877-463-6367). The only activities universally allowed at nature preserves are hiking or photography. See map on page six.

Why each Hoosier Conservationist should have a Hunting/Fishing license in their pocket . . . and a Heritage Trust Plate on their car.

The Power Of The Plate

By purchasing a $25 combination license, Hoosiers do more than gain the opportunity to hunt or fish.

The federal government matches each 'combo' license with $20 in federal funds to manage, improve and acquire fish and wildlife habitat.

In 2005, EACH DOLLAR spent on an Environmental License Plate was leveraged and matched by not-for-profit partners or governmental entities, becoming FIVE DOLLARS that can be committed to preserving Indiana's natural resources.

The DNR uses these combined funds to do things like acquire the 8,000 acre Goose Pond property in Greene County, research various species of game and nongame to ensure survival and manage habitat for endangered species.

www.enviropate.IN.gov

As a result, Hoosiers from across Indiana enjoy firsthand the benefits of these efforts. Seeing a bobcat, whooping crane or bald eagle makes all of these efforts worthwhile.
